

The National Café is a stunning destination in the heart of central London. Located within The National Gallery in Trafalgar Square, the restaurant is a destination in its own right, attracting locals and visitors to the capital looking for a refined eating experience and a vibrant atmosphere. The National Café has recently been redesigned by Paris-based Belgian designer Ramy Fischler. It features intimate booths, a self-service café area, a bar and an exclusive private dining room. Our private dining room, the Trafalgar Room, offers a stylish space for up to 30 guests. The National Café is ideal for theatre-goers or those looking for an elegant drink after work. The restaurant and bar are open Monday–Friday from 8am–11pm, Saturday 9am–11pm and Sunday 9am–6pm.

The artwork on the café screens are by the same artist – Claude-Joseph Vernet. Vernet was the leading French landscape painter (with Hubert Robert) of the later 18th century. He achieved great celebrity with his topographical paintings and serene landscapes. He was also one of the century's most accomplished painters of tempests and moonlight scenes.

A Sporting Contest is on the restaurant side and A Seaport is on the bar side. Both are part of the Gallery's permanent collection.

A Sporting Contest on the Tiber at Rome
1750, Claude-Joseph Vernet - Commissioned by the Marquis de Villette in 1749, and one of several pictures by Vernet which he owned. The painting was exhibited at the Paris Salon of 1750.

A Seaport
Later 18th century, Possibly by Claude-Joseph Vernet.
